For ten years he has been the writer of a weekly page of rod and gun news on a St. Louis newspaper. the line is to be drawn between work done free of charge and work for which a charge shall be made.

In the early days of the industry, it was a case of sell the car and let the man shift for himself. Like most everything else connected with the motor car industry, this condition today is changed. No man in the business who makes the least pretense of ness who makes the least pretense of being up-to-date (unless he is, he will not last long) is without a service station. True, some are more elaborate than others, but they are all built on the same basic principle, to care for the wants of the users and owners of their cars.

With the sale of every motor car there goes the guarantee that the machine is mechanically right, and that if within a certain specified time any part breaks through being defective, the factory will furnish a new one free of charge. In addition to this factory definite length of time repairs gratis within

There are some owners who are under the impression that. With the purchase of their car, the customer likewise bought a controlling interest in the service station and that no matter what happens, he has the right to drive up, call out a metric of the right to drive up. right to drive up, call out a me-chanic, have him remedy the trouble and when the job is done, drive off 90.11 you." Naturally, it is the desire of all 86.25 dealers to sell as many cars as possible, but frankly most of them will 53.36 you they do not want this kind of say they do not want this kind of

To obviate this sort of abuse, some star representatives have adopted the soll plan of a card system. A man brings his car to the service station and states what he wants done. It is written on a duplicate card, one of which goes to the shop foreman, and the other is kept in the office. After pressly stated that a charge will be made for all other repairs. When the pressly stated that a charge will be made for all other repairs. When the first turned over to the owner, he is presented with a bill for all excess work and asked for a settlement. Naturally, there are cases in which he objects, but this plan has been found to do away with a great deal of abuse.

This has a tendency to make the owner careful in asking for service and he only comes to the service station when he really is in trouble.
